The slowdown in activity on the bond market and reduced access to liquidity has increased the overall risk of the fund from medium to high.

Fund Review and Strategy

SIFT's assets under management was Ghs483M at the end of June 2023. The fund's year-to-date return was 1.2% and 9.2% (AMC sub-class), with a benchmark of 11.0%. At the end of Q2 2023, the combined fund had 92% of its assets in bonds, 1% in money market securities, and about 8% in cash and near-cash. The overweight in bonds is as a result of the fund's participation in the domestic debt exchange programme and its impact on the market. The fund's strategy is to remain conservative by investing in short-term quality bank deposits.

Market Overview

Ghana concluded a bailout programme with the International Monetary Fund, with the first disbursement of about $600million received in May. The funding package is expected to improve the country's macroeconomic stability and restore investor confidence. The central bank maintained the policy rate at 29.5% in May, with the expectation that inflation would continue its declining trend. However, rising food prices and higher taxes increased inflation from 41.2% in April to 42.5% in June. Treasury bills continue to dominate secondary market activity, with yields trending upwards marginally within the quarter, as Government remains limited in financing options. Lower bond yields and disparities in the new bonds' pricing continue to slow down market activity, impacting returns and liquidity of collective investment funds. Completing both the external and second round of domestic debt restructuring should improve market confidence in the sustainability of the country's debt levels, which should drive a downward trend in treasury yields.
